Northbrook Court Update: TIF Approved, Plan Before Board

The Village of Northbrook Trustees recently made a commitment to a public/private partnership for the redevelopment of Northbrook Court by approving creation of a Tax Increment Funding (TIF) District. The final form of that redevelopment appeared to be taking shape in May, as the Plan Commission reviewed the developers' response to suggestions from Commissioners and complaints from neighboring residents.

Approval of the TIF District by the Board of Trustees locks in the EAV of property within the District. Taxing bodies will continue to receive revenue based on that set valuation, but waive the revenue on value above that caused by the redevelopment's improvements for a maximum period of 23 years. The TIF structure would provide up to $21.5 million toward redevelopment. A sales tax rebate of $5.5 million is also under consideration as part of the current proposal advanced by mall owner Brookfield Properties.

The Trustees approved the ordinances creating the TIF by a 5-1 vote. Trustee Jim Karagianis, voting with the majority, described the structure as "very inexpensive insurance" to keep Northbrook Court healthy. "We're rebating future increases in value, and that is costing us nothing today," he said. He noted that the base includes current Macy's revenue, which would disappear in the likely event that the store closes in the future. (His expectation proved to be accurate; Macy's has announced that it will close its Northbrook Court location this summer.)

Trustee Robert Israel concurred, citing an NPR news report on the rapid changes in brick-and-mortar retail. "In the first third of 2019 we've already outpaced closures of stores than in all of 2018," said Israel. "The people who are staying ahead do continual planning and adjust their tack as the storms approach. I think that this plan allows Northbrook Court to do that; I think it allows our Village to do that."

Northbrook Live Shop Dine Goes Mobile New Text Program Delivers Deals to Customers

The Chamber is excited to announce a new initiative to promote Northbrook stores and restaurants: a mobile text service connecting local businesses to the public. The innovative community program, launching in June, allows shoppers to access targeted offers and incentives with just a tap on their phone. Best of all, this marketing opportunity is available to businesses free of charge, thanks to a partnership between the Chamber and the Village.

The new Northbrook Live Shop Dine mobile program takes advantage of the powerful relationship between consumers and their phones. A 2018 Pew Institute survey revealed that 77% of Americans now use some kind of smartphone, and text marketing is an immediate and direct way to reach that vast audience.

"Text is a very effective channel to connect with customers," explains NorthShore Loyalty's Ron Goldblatt, who with his business partner Patti Marshman-Goldblatt is working with the Chamber to implement the program. "Text messages have a 98% open rate within the first three minutes of being sent, so we know our messages are seen and then acted on."

A Message from the Chamber President

There's no way to sugarcoat it: this has been a really challenging Spring. Between the massive road construction projects, the water boil order, and some miserable weather, we've all been shaking our heads and wondering, What's next?

The saving grace of times like these is the resilience and commitment of our entire community. Our public officials are doing all they can to share information and keep things operating as normally as possible. Village President Sandy Frum issued a call to action in the open letter published in May: "Now, more than ever, is the time to support our Northbrook businesses by shopping locally and supporting our businesses....Northbrook businesses have always been there for us, now it's our turn to return the favor." Her letter reflected a real understanding of how our businesses have been asked to weather a series of storms, and an appreciation of the importance of the business community to the Village as a whole. It was encouraging to see our local leaders stand up for our businesses in such a public way.

The Chamber partners with the Village on a number of projects that support the interconnected health of businesses, government and residents. One of our biggest projects is making its annual appearance as we speak. The 2019-20 Northbrook Community Guide is chock-full of useful information about all elements of life in the Village. It provides residents and visitors with a handy guide to the organizations, service providers, stores, and restaurants that they will rely on all year. Of course, Chamber members are prominently featured throughout the Guide.

Another exciting joint effort with the Village is the brand new Northbrook Live Shop Dine text marketing program. This free program delivers special offers from Northbrook stores and restaurants to program participants via convenient text messages. I encourage all of you to sign up for the text messages, invite your friends to sign up, and help us build a network that will make this initiative a true success story. For more details, see the story on page 1.

As I look out the window, things are definitely improving. Drivers are adjusting to the new traffic patterns, and the sun is finally making an appearance. That brings me to another bit of positive news: the Annual Golf Outing is right around the corner on June 14! I want to send many thanks to our sponsors, raffle donors, and committee volunteers who are ensuring that this fundraiser provides support for the Chamber and a great time for all the participants. Golfers, be sure to sign up soon and bring your clients and colleagues. See you on the course!

Northbrook Development Updates

Sterling Place Townhome Development Moves Forward

An 84-unit townhome subdivision on Techny Road moved closer to reality with the approval of rezoning, a special permit and development concept plans by the Village Board. Sterling Place, a project of M/I Homes of Chicago, is planned for the former Maurice Sporting Goods property just east of Shermer Road.

Culver's Gets Thumbs Up from ACC

The Village's Architectural Control Commission approved plans for a proposed Culver's restaurant on the southwest corner of Dundee and Sanders Roads. The plans, including building design, site layout, and an electronic message sign will next be reviewed by the Plan Commission.

Eataco Coming Soon to Downtown

Northbrook diners will have a new downtown destination for Mexican food this summer. Eataco Taco & Tequila Bar is coming to 1350 Shermer Road, a space previously occupied by Jar Bar. Owner Kadir Cicek plans to open in June, pending final inspections.

Raising a Glass: Craft Distillery Proposes Tasting Room and Event Space

A Northbrook distiller of craft liquors hopes to expand its space and open a tasting room, a novel business model that builds on the growing popularity of artisanal food and beverage products. Trustees were intrigued by the preliminary proposal from Almighty Spirits Distiller presented at a recent Board meeting, despite questions about zoning and licensing restrictions.

Almighty Spirits currently distills, bottles and stores its whiskey, gin, and other liquors in a 1,200 square foot facility at 1904 Techny Road. The company now sells wholesale to bars and restaurants, but sees potential for development through a tasting room with accessory retail sales. According to a statement submitted to the Trustees by the company, "When we signed the lease for this space, we had hopes we would grow into more of a local attraction -- bringing customers to Northbrook to see our processes and meet us."

That original vision would see fruition in the opening of a tasting room/event space, made possible by the business's expansion into the adjacent 1906 Techny space and enlarging the company's overall space to over 2,900 feet. The tasting room would be open to the public and be a focal point for tours and corporate events. The company would like to offer retail sales of their spirits through the tasting room, which ultimately would be open from 10:00 a.m. to midnight Monday through Thursday and until 2:00 a.m. on Friday and Saturday.

At the April 23 meeting, Village staff noted that the proposal would require adjustments to the property's zoning treatment. Currently zoned I-1, the landlord for the distillery space and surrounding property has applied for a rezoning to ICS, allowing for a broader mix of land uses within the district. This new categorization would allow retail sales through the tasting room, pending liquor license approval.

In addition, the proposal exceeds the 2,500 square foot maximum set for craft food & beverage businesses allowed under a 2013 zoning code interpretation. Tom Poupard, the Village's Director of Development & Planning Services, explained that the size increase could be accommodated through a staff modification to the interpretation, by amendment to the Zoning Code to add craft food and beverage as a permitted or special use in ICS, or by amendment to the Zoning Code to lift restrictions on food and beverage activities.

Trustees found the proposal interesting, but voiced concerns about the hours of operation, and definitions of what would constitute a "taste." President Sandy Frum noted that those terms would be set as part of the business's liquor license. Overall, the Board seemed to welcome the idea of this unique business proposal. At the close of discussion, Trustee Karagianis referred Almighty Spirits' proposal to the Plan Commission "with very supportive comments."

Northbrook Court cont. from pg. 1

Trustee Jason Han, the sole dissenting vote, reiterated his earlier statements that the TIF amounted to "corporate welfare." He acknowledged, however, "that these types of financial tools have become the norm for developers and it is very likely that they wouldn't develop without it."

Plan Commission Evaluates Design Revisions

The details of the proposal were considered by the Plan Commission during its May 7 meeting, where Brookfield and residential developer Ryan Companies presented a revised plan. Commissioners and neighboring residents had complained in April that the proposed apartment buildings were too close to homes to the south of the current Macy's building as well as too tall. The revisions presented May 7 responded by moving the apartments back to at least 100 feet from the nearest property and stepping the top floor of the buildings back 18 feet to reduce the overall height facing the neighbors. Brookfield also presented market research to demonstrate the viability of the proposed grocery store at the project, and outlined possible alternative uses if the grocery store were to fail.

During the Plan Commission hearing, Brookfield's Adam Tritt stated that the companies would like to break ground on the project in August, soon after the closing of the Macy's store. In response to a question from Chairperson Marcia Franklin, Tritt stated that demolition would not affect "very much" of the mall beyond Macy's.

Several residents of the Glenbrook Countryside neighborhood, in unincorporated Cook County, spoke in opposition to the revised plan, saying they want the developers to work within the current zoning allowances of 50 feet in height and 150 feet in setback. However, the panel indicated that the developers had made great progress toward finding a workable compromise. Commissioner Steven Elisco noted that the revised plan had responded to his concerns about the massing of the apartment buildings on the south side, a view that was echoed by Commissioners Norm Jacobs, Johannah Hebl, Mark DeBartolo and Dan Pepoon. Commissioners Jennifer Lawrence and Jeremy Melnick continued to have reservations about, respectively, the grocery store and the apartment location, but each stated that they felt the developers had "come close" to a workable plan.

At the close of the May 7 meeting, the Commissioners voted unanimously for staff to prepare a resolution for discussion on May 21, in support of the development as proposed. Following that vote, the matter is expected to go to the Board of Trustees for consideration.

For Jack Eisenberg, Gail's Brownies, the ability to share samples is a great strength of the Expo. "The Expo allows you to introduce your product to a lot of people in a very short amount of time," notes Jack. "In our case, people get to enjoy samples of our brownies, and that experience opens the door for our follow-up calls. It absolutely gets us business; we got great orders from last year's show."

Each Expo exhibitor is provided with a six-foot skirted table, WiFi access, postcards to help promote the event, and a listing in all collateral material. Premium exhibitors are guaranteed wall space assignment, extra space for floor signage, and electricity. The event is widely promoted through newspaper ads, the Chamber's newsletter and website, and other media to ensure a great pool of potential customers for participating businesses.

Refer to the enclosed flyer for detailed price information and to register. After June 22, the cost increases. Early registration is encouraged, as space sells out every year. Call Katie Walther (847)513-6003 with questions.

Creating a successful program is a two-sided proposition: attracting consumers to sign up and enlisting businesses to participate. The Chamber will publicize the initiative and facilitate registrations at major Northbrook events this summer, including the opening of the Farmers Market and the 4th of July Parade. Members are encouraged to sign up as users, and to share Live Shop Dine Goes Mobile information with customers and friends on social media, e-mail, and websites.

On the business side, NorthShore Loyalty has begun developing a network of retail and community partners. Businesses can add their free trials, special discounts, events and other promotions by contacting Ron at ron@northshoreloyalty.com. An automated system will enable merchants to add their own offers, terms, logos, and images.

The Live Shop Dine text service is just one of several marketing programs managed by the Chamber on behalf of the entire Northbrook business community. Other initiatives include the Northbrook Shopping Elf Facebook page, the liveshopdinenorthbrook.com website, the pull-out Shopping & Dining Guide in the Northbrook Community Resource Guide, and a holiday shopping guide published in the Northbrook Tower. The Village helps support these efforts with funding directed to the Chamber from hotel tax collections. The goal is to maintain a healthy sales tax base, which typically constitutes 35% of the Village's annual revenue. As Ron points out, "When we all shop local, our community thrives."

Shred Spot Honored as Green Business of the Year

The Village of Northbrook's Environmental Quality Commission has selected Shred Spot for its annual Green Business award. Launched in 2018, the award recognizes Northbrook-based businesses that take significant steps to reduce their impact on the environment. Shred Spot owner Paul Kaufmann accepted the award from the Board of Trustees on April 23.

Shred Spot goes above and beyond to promote environmental stewardship. The company recycles massive amounts of the paper it shreds for clients -- a total of 269 tons in 2018. During that same time, Shred Spot also recycled 45 tons of electronics and 15 tons of cardboard, and reused or recycled 1200 shipping pallets. The company partners with recycling facilities in Illinois, Wisconsin, and Kentucky, cutting down on freight costs as well as the emissions caused by longer-distance transport of materials.

A dedicated volunteer for Hunger Resource Network, Northbrook Civic, the Chamber, and other organizations, Paul's commitment to the greater good motivates his recycling efforts.

"The primary purpose of my shredding business is protecting people's security," says Paul, "but the extra steps we take to recycle have real benefits. With the way things are going for the environment, we're doing all we can to keep this paper and other material out of landfills."

Check Your Mailbox for the New Community Guide

Hot off the presses, the 2019/2020 Northbrook Community Resource Guide has been mailed to all residences and businesses in the Village, a distribution of 16,500 copies. The Chamber publishes this comprehensive Guide each year, prominently featuring members in the categorical and alphabetical Business Directories as well as in related editorial sections. Families, visitors, realtors and businesses use the Guide throughout the year for information on public services, schools, community organizations, and events.

The Guide provides in-depth coverage of Northbrook life, including contact information for government officials, religious organizations, and social service groups. A calendar of events showcases recreational and cultural options available to residents.

One of the most popular features of the Guide is the pull-out Shopping & Dining Guide, including a complete list of all Northbrook restaurants and descriptions of major retail centers around the Village.

Published in partnership with 22nd Century Media, the Guide is stocked at high traffic locations for further circulation to new residents, businesses and visitors. The Chamber also distributes hundreds of copies to hotels, community groups, large corporations and civic organizations throughout the year. Watch for the colorful Community Guide arriving at your Northbrook home or office by early June. If you are located outside the Village or would like additional copies, stop by the Chamber office.
