Village Begins Consideration of Affordable Housing Policies

The topic of affordable housing recently has been raised on a number of occasions by residents and Village Trustees in connection with proposed residential development projects. The Trustees announced in May that increasing affordable housing would be a top priority, and took steps to start exploring policy options. An introductory workshop revealed a host of issues, beginning with fundamental questions of defining the goals of a policy.

Although Illinois passed affordable housing legislation back in 2003, home rule communities like Northbrook are not required to abide by state quotas. Nonetheless, the Village has taken action in the past to encourage the creation of affordable units, such as the establishment of Crestwood Place for seniors that offers below-market rental rates. The Village developed an Affordable Housing Plan in 2005, but economic pressures have hindered progress toward its goals.

According to statistics from the Illinois Housing Development Authority, less than six percent of Northbrook's housing stock fits the state's definition of "affordable." With high demand in the Village for single family homes, small older structures are often demolished to make way for larger, more expensive residences. A strong rental

Chamber's Auction & Taste Promises a Night to Remember

Annual Auction & Taste

Monday, October 28th

5:00 - 7:30 p.m.

Renaissance Chicago North Shore Hotel

presented by

Enjoy an evening of sumptuous food and enticing auction items at the 26th Annual Auction & Taste on October 28. For members and community leaders, this signature event at the Renaissance Chicago North Shore Hotel is a high point of the year. As the Chamber's largest fundraiser, the Auction supports community outreach activities like meal packing and also keeps Chamber participation affordable for members.

The Renaissance's beautiful ballroom will be filled with food stations from 17 of the North Shore's most popular restaurants, each offering "tastes" of their specialties. Attendees can savor their favorites while they browse a wide range of silent auction offerings.

Chamber members have gone above and beyond with donations to the Auction to ensure a varied selection of attractive options. Plan a special evening with theatre tickets and a restaurant gift certificate, or gather a foursome for a fun day on the golf course. Memberships and programs from fitness clubs provide great motivation to meet your exercise goals. Gift baskets with items from Northbrook's most popular retailers offer something for everyone.

Businesses Reach Customers Through Live Shop Dine Texts

Participation continues to expand for the Live Shop Dine Northbrook mobile text program, and eligible businesses in the Village are strongly encouraged to take advantage of this free marketing opportunity. Presented as a partnership between the Chamber and the Village, the service allows businesses to share special promotions with a growing subscriber base.

Launched in June, Live Shop Dine Northbrook currently has over 2,650 subscriber households. Each subscriber receives text messages highlighting a major community event, along with a link to a landing page filled with offers from Northbrook retailers and restaurants. Ron Goldblatt, North Shore Loyalty, manages the program and tracks how the traffic is flowing to participating businesses.

"In the short time since our launch, we have had almost 30,000 visits to the landing page and 9500 click-throughs to view individual coupons," notes Ron. "We've seen great interest in the community event announcements, which started with the St.

Message from Chamber President

Chamber staff has recently been contacting all our members to verify and update their information in our records. Going through all that information makes me reflect on the remarkable breadth and diversity of our membership.

For example, did you know that we have members from 65 different zip codes, ranging in size from one employee to 7000? Our members represent an enormous variety of industries, but they all share a common understanding that businesses grow through connection, involvement, and mutual support. The growth of the Chamber benefits all its members.

One of the most effective ways to support the Chamber doesn't cost a thing -- your referrals of potential members. Each month, new businesses contact the Chamber because they've heard good things from customers, clients or colleagues. When you share your positive Chamber experiences or encourage a friend to check out First Friday, you help expand the network that provides all of us with productive networking. If you know someone that you think would be interested in joining, please pass along their information to our Membership Director Kathi Quinn.

I'm looking forward to seeing everyone at one of the highlights of the year, the Annual Auction & Taste on Monday, October 28. This very special evening has it all: delicious food, exciting auction items, and warm socializing in a beautiful setting at the Renaissance Hotel. Most importantly, this event that we all enjoy also funds the Chamber's community outreach efforts and keeps our dues and programs affordable. Please plan to join us, and bring your friends (including those prospective members mentioned above)!

Speaking of friends, I want to take a moment to say a fond farewell to our staff member Jean Streeter, who plans to retire at the end of the month. After 15 years as our Communications and Office Manager, Jean began transitioning away from her full-time role at the start of 2019 but stayed on part-time for most of this year to help keep our office running smoothly. Now, she's looking forward to having free time to visit her first grandchild, expected to arrive in January.

I hope to see you all at the Auction & Taste!

Business Awards Honor Excellence - Submit Nominations Today!

When the Chamber gathers for its Annual Meeting early in 2020, the spotlight will shine on three award-winning members who exemplify high standards for business success, community involvement, and commitment to the organization. Nominations are now open for the Chamber Volunteer, Corporate Citizen, and Business of the Year Awards, and all members are encouraged to submit the names of companies or individuals that they feel should be recognized.

"The Annual Business Awards honor members who inspire all of us to achieve," says Chamber Board Chair Bob Caldwell, Hallmark Homecare. "It's especially fitting that nominations come from fellow members, because it reflects the nominees' positive impact on their peers and the larger community."

- The Business of the Year is honored for significant growth and outstanding customer service. Recent award winners include Reds Garden Center, la de da!, and Bell Flavors & Fragrances

- The Corporate Citizen Award recognizes companies that go above and beyond to support the community through philanthropy. Corporate Citizens from the past three years have been Waterway Carwash, the Hilton Chicago/Northbrook, and A.W. Zengeler Cleaners.
- The Volunteer of the Year goes to an individual who consistently contributes time and energy to further the Chamber's goals. The most recent honorees include Robyn Kole, Brad Baskin, and Paul Kaufmann.

To nominate a member, email info@northbrookchamber.org with the name of your nominee, the award for which they should be recognized, and a short explanation of why they deserve that award. Nominations will close on November 30. Winners will be announced in the February newsletter, and will receive featured recognition at the Annual Meeting & Dinner. For more information, contact Tensley Garris, tensley@northbrookchamber.org.

market has also led to a steady increase in rent levels, to the point where Northbrook currently has no available rentals that could be defined as affordable, according to research by Village staff. Crestwood Place, mentioned above, currently has a waiting list of 61 applicants.

At a Committee of the Whole meeting, Director of Development and Planning Services Tom Poupard presented the Trustees with a detailed report outlining Northbrook's past efforts, current demographic and housing market conditions, and examples of tools that communities can use to preserve or increase the supply of affordable housing. The report identified areas in the Village that currently have more affordable housing units. The presentation also offered an in-depth look at Highland Park as a city with an established policy, allowing the Trustees to see how Highland Park's requirements of making 20% of new projects affordable would have affected current development projects in Northbrook.

For example, the planned apartment development at Northbrook Court, with 315 units, would have been required to have 63 affordable units under the Highland Park rules. The Anets Woods subdivision, with 32 single family homes priced at over $1 million, would need to have six affordable units. Developers find it challenging to achieve a workable mix, especially in the single family home subdivisions. Highland Park's ordinance gives developers some options, including the ability to pay a fee in lieu of to the City's Affordable Housing Trust Fund or build affordable units off-site.

Village President Sandy Frum focused the initial discussion on the Board's goals for enacting an affordable housing policy. Trustee Johannah Hebl stated her concern for longtime residents who find themselves in economic hardship and unable to stay within the community. Trustees Muriel Collison and Heather Ross envisioned a variety of housing options making the community accessible, especially to people who work in the Village. Trustee Robert Israel noted the overall aging of Northbrook's population, and hoped an affordable housing plan would bring an infusion of young families. The Trustees generally agreed with a threshold income level for qualifying applicants at 120% of area median household income.

President Frum noted that the meeting was only the opening of discussions on the topic, and that later sessions would address the variety of tools available to increase affordable housing opportunities. Strategies fall broadly into zoning relief (such as density allowances, accessory homes, and reduced parking requirements) and financial approaches (like permit fee waivers, employer subsidies, or purchasing affordable homes by the Village using a municipally-maintained fund), giving the Village flexibility to meet its goals.

"A cookie cutter approach doesn't work with affordable housing," noted Poupard. "You have to apply creativity."

Norbert Block Party and surged when we were able to provide updates on Northbrook Days. We also helped sell the final 150 tickets for Friday Night Flights last month. All those visitors to the landing page had direct exposure to our vendors' special offers."

Participation in the program is free of charge and easy to set up for retailers and restaurants with a Northbrook location. More than 75 businesses currently are listed on the program's landing page. The most-viewed deals offer clear, easy to understand discounts on a business's best-known products. Some popular offers have included a BOGO free entree at Butterfield's, a 99 cent sundae at Baskin Robbins, and half-price bottles of wine at House 406.

"We have a number of strategies to keep growing the subscriber base, including sign-up tablets at the Library and Village Hall and a new partnership with North Shore Plus that will connect us to 25,000 more contacts," says Ron. "This is a great time for businesses to get established with the program leading up to the busy holiday shopping season."

Chamber Members Provide 38,000 Meals to People in Need

For the eighth year, the Northbrook Chamber stepped up to battle hunger with an impressive turn out at the Annual Meal Packing Event. 160 volunteers representing 61 member companies teamed up to pack 38,000 nutritious pasta meals for food pantries, soup kitchens, and other agencies served by the Salvation Army of Greater Chicago. In addition, the Chamber took action to battle hunger closer to home with a $1000 donation to the Northfield Township Food Pantry.

Several members contributed extra support to make the event an even bigger success. Wiss Janney Elstner Associates and Whitehall of Deerfield each donated $1000, paying to increase the total number of meals to 38,000. The Hilton Chicago/Northbrook provided its ballroom space for the project, along with pizza to reward the volunteers who gave up their lunch hours for the event. DJ Marz Lawhorn from Charizma Entertainment played classic tunes to keep everyone moving.

The Meal Packing Event is just one of many initiatives the Chamber pursues to help others in the community. "The Chamber is more than a business organization. We strive to make our community the best it can be," notes Tensley Garris, Chamber President. "The commitment of our members to an enormous variety of charitable causes reflects their heartfelt values. The Meal Packing Event is just one of the most visible programs that shows how much our members care about helping others."
